ART UNIT 222

The following is an Examiner's Statement of Reasons for Allowance

Regarding independent claim 106, the prior art fails to show a digital rights management (DRM) system operating on a computing device when a user requests that a protected piece of digital content be rendered by the computer device in a particular manner, the system including: a rendering application by which the requested digital content is rendered, a license store for storing one or more digital licenses on the computing device, the license store providing access to the one or more digital licenses separately from the requested digital content; a license evaluator for determining whether any licenses stored in the license store correspond to the requested digital content, for determining whether any such corresponding licenses are valid, for reviewing license rules in each such valid license, and for determining based on such reviewed license rules whether such license enables the requesting user to render the requested digital content in the manner sought, a state store for maintaining state information corresponding to each license in the license store, the state information being created and updated by the license evaluator; and, a black box for performing encryption and decryption functions as part of the evaluation of any license, wherein the license evaluator selects an enabling, valid license and works with the black box to obtain a decryption key (KD) from the selected license, and wherein the black box employs such decryption key (KD) to decrypt the protected digital content, and wherein the black box decrypts the protected digital content when the license evaluator determines that a license in fact enables the requesting user to render the requested digital content in the manner and complexity recited by the claims. Regarding independent claim 129, the prior art fails to show a computing device having a digital rights management (DRM) system operating thereon when a user requests that a protected piece of digital content be rendered by the computer device in a particular manner, the DRM system including: a rendering application by which the requested digital content is rendered, a license store for storing one or more digital licenses on the computing device, the license store providing access to the one or more digital licenses separately from the requested digital content; a license evaluator for determining whether any licenses stored in the license store correspond to the requested digital content, for determining whether any such corresponding licenses are valid, for reviewing license rules in each such valid license, and for determining based on such reviewed license rules whether such license enables the requesting user to render the requested digital content in the manner sought; a state store for maintaining state information corresponding to each license in the license store, the state information being created and updated by the license evaluator; and a black box for performing encryption and decryption functions as part of the evaluation of any license, wherein the license evaluator selects an enabling, valid license and works with the black box to obtain a decryption key (KD) from the selected license, and wherein the black box employs such decryption key (KD) to decrypt the protected digital content, and wherein the black box decrypts the protected digital content when the license evaluator determines that a license in fact enables the requesting user to render the requested digital content in the manner and complexity recited by the claims. Regarding independent claim 152 the prior art fails to show a computer-readable medium having computer-executable instructions stored thereon for operating a digital rights management (DRM) system on a computing device when a user requests that a protected piece of digital content be rendered by the computer device in a particular manner, the instructions performing a method including: storing one or more digital licenses in a license store on the computing device, the license store providing access to the one or more digital licenses separately from the requested digital content; determining whether any licenses stored in the license store correspond to the requested digital content, determining whether any such corresponding licenses are valid; reviewing license rules in each such valid license; determining based on such reviewed license rules whether such license enables the requesting user to render the requested digital content in the manner sought, maintaining in a state store on the computing device state information corresponding to each license in the license store, the state information being created and updated; and performing encryption and decryption functions as part of the evaluation of any license, the method comprising selecting an enabling, valid license, obtaining a decryption key (KD) from the selected license, and employing such decryption key (KD) to decrypt the protected digital content, the method comprising decrypting the protected digital content upon determining that a license in fact enables the requesting user to render the requested digital content in the manner and complexity recited by the claims.
